

Introduction of Angel Nance

Angel Nance grew up in Mount Vernon a small town in southwestern Indiana. Early in her adult life, she moved around a lot. She lived in a couple of towns in western Kentucky and one in Texas. She has lived in LaGrange for 11 years now. She is currently a stay-at-home mom and teaches history in a homeschool co-op.

She loves her Catholic faith. She enjoys reading writing, gardening, cooking, and keeping up with her kids. She grows heirloom vegetables and raises chickens in her suburban yard.

Angel's family has always supported the Oldham County History Center programs. Her daughter and son have participated in the history center's History Hounds, Junior Ranger and history camp programs and children's events. Angel supports public history programs. Stories from our local. She used to work as a curatorial assistant and loved delving into the stories in the archives.
